Lemmenjoki National Park, FINLAND

At 2855 sq km, Lemmenjoki (Sámi: Leammi) is Finland's largest national park, covering a remote wilderness area between Inari and Norway. It is prime hiking territory, with desolate wilderness rivers, rough landscapes and the mystique of gold, with solitary prospectors sloshing away with their pans in the middle of nowhere. Boat trips on the river allow more leisurely exploration of the park.

-  In early June to early August there's a daily taxi-bus (Monday to Friday) between Inari and Lemmenjoki. In winter ask at the Inari tourist office.
-  There are many marked trails for hiking, one route heads over Látnjoaivi Fell to Vaskojoki hut and back, taking you into the 'wilderness area'.
-  You're in the Arctic Circle so it can be extremely cold - wrap up!
-  The northern lights (winter) or midnight sun (summer).
