

Northern Territory Trips

THE TOP END, THE RED CENTRE, OR SIMPLY 'THE TERRITORY'. Whatever you call it, the Northern Territory has an elemental feel to it. It's here that so many Aussie landmarks of international repute reside, from Uluru, Kata Tjuta (the Olgas) and Kings Canyon in the south to Katherine, Kakadu and Litchfield in the north.

As you'd expect from a predominantly outback region, the roads here can be empty, the distances are immense, and some northern trails may be impassable in the Big Wet (November to March). But the rewards are simply extraordinary, primary among them some of the best opportunities to experience this ancient land alongside its original inhabitants. Stock up on supplies and hit the road.

Devil's Marbles Gigantic granite boulders, believed to be the eggs of the Rainbow Serpent (Trip 25)
NOLAN CALDWELL/GETTY IMAGES ©