The following listings have been selected because they demonstrate an active sustainable-tourism policy. Some are involved in conservation or environmental education, while others are owned and operated by local and indigenous operators, thereby maintaining and preserving the regional identity and culture.

We have also included several DIY listings. Rather than further perpetuate the 'Lonely Planet trail,' we are increasingly encouraging our readers to go beyond the pages of our guidebooks. By heading to far-off places you are supporting grass-roots tourism development, encouraging local communities to retain their culture and language, and providing locals with a viable alternative from fleeing to Cancún and the other tourist megadraws to eke out a living.

If you think we've omitted someone who should be listed here, or if you disagree with our choices, email us at talk2us@lonelyplanet.com.au. For more information about sustainable tourism and Lonely Planet, see www.lonelyplanet.com/responsibletravel.
