Easy-to-Access Virgin Islands

Scads of nonstop flights put the US Virgin Islands in easy reach of the US and Canada. One week gives the ideal overview of this small but perfectly formed cluster of islands.

Start on St John. Spend day one at the North Shore beaches: Cinnamon Bay, with windsurfing and trails through mill ruins; Maho Bay, where sea turtles swim; or Leinster Bay/Waterlemon Cay, where snorkelers can jump in amid rays and barracuda. Raise a toast to your beach in rollicking Cruz Bay.

Spend day two at Salt Pond Bay, where cool hikes and turtle snorkeling await. Drink, dance and dine with the colorful characters in Coral Bay afterward.

Devote day three to the Reef Bay Hike, kayaking along coastal reefs or another favorite activity. Hop on a ferry on day four to check out St Thomas’ East End, with its resorts and marine park.

Spend part of day five in the popular cruise-ship stop of Charlotte Amalie on St Thomas, then take the seaplane to Christiansted, St Croix. Over the next two days drink at old windmills turned gin mills, dive its barrier reef and paddle through the glowing waters of Salt River Bay.
Cuba & the Cayman Islands

The contrasts of this itinerary make it appealing—enjoy a bastion of socialism and a citadel of capitalism. Grand Cayman is a major transit point for people visiting Cuba and there are daily flights between the two, although Havana is served increasingly well by direct flights from the USA.

Begin your trip in Havana, Cuba’s extraordinary capital city, and stay at one of the venerable old luxury hotels for prices that haven’t changed in years but are anticipated to rise in a post-Fidel tourism boom. Marvel at block after block of gloriously dissolving buildings, listen to some music and drink with locals. Just wander around: every block holds a surprise and the seawall is world-famous. Head to Santa Clara and the venerable monument to Ernesto Che Guevara, the city’s adopted son, then plunge into the city’s youth-oriented culture. Push on from here to Trinidad, a Unesco World Heritage site. You can easily spend a week in this perfectly preserved Spanish-colonial town, hiking in Topes de Collantes or lazing at Playa Ancón. Head east to Santiago de Cuba and its many attractions, including the Castillo de San Pedro del Morro, the Cuartel Moncada and, of course, the vibrant music scene.

Return to Havana and fly on to Grand Cayman. Head straight to Seven Mile Beach and do purely fun things such as snorkeling at Stingray City. Grand Cayman is known for its commercialism, but you can see another side to the islands if you carry on with an excursion to Little Cayman, where the 120 or so residents will be happy to see you. Laze on its deserted beaches and consider a world-class wall dive at Bloody Bay Marine Park. Choose from its several excellent yet low-key resorts, and have the best ice cream of the trip at the National Trust Visitors Center. There’s great birdwatching, and if you’re feeling energetic you can cycle around the whole island in a single day.

The small size of all three islands, Aruba, Bonaire & Curaçao, mean that even the most peripatetic vacationer will require little time for complete explorations, meaning there’ll be plenty of time to simply plop down and relax.

Most places to stay, eat and even play on Aruba are in the north. Stay on relaxed Eagle Beach, Aruba’s best. Assuming you’re here for the sand – that’s Aruba’s real charm – then besides a day to explore the wet and wild northeast coast, Arikok National Wildlife Park, which has some nice hiking trails, and interesting Oranjestad (which hops when the cruise ships are in port), you should just play on the beach. And given the vast stretches of sand on the island, it won’t be too hard to find the ideal plot for your beach blanket.

From Aruba, it’s quick hop over to Curaçao. This is an island to take your time exploring. Stay in colonial Willemstad, which is one of the region’s most interesting towns, then wander the coasts to the north, where national parks, restored plantations and a bevy of hidden beaches await. Count on three days at least to enjoy it all at a leisurely pace, including climbing Christoffel Mountain and exploring Shete Boka National Park. You might even want to try some snorkeling or head to Spaanse Water, where the windsurfing will blow you away.

Fly from Curaçao to Bonaire. Once you’re there, you may not see much of the island above sea level as you’ll be underwater much of the time. One of the world’s great diving locations, Bonaire’s underwater splendor and 90 named dive sites will keep you busy. Exploring the island, which has stark beauty and flamingo-spotting, and learning about an easily accessed past will take about a day. The island’s second city – a village really – Rincon, has a slow and inviting pace, while at the horizon-spanning salt flats in the south you can still see evidence of slavery and colonial trade. In the middle of it all, cute little Kralendijk combines eating, sleeping and fun.
Once off the plane in St-Martin/Sint-Maarten, you can hop your way around some of the Caribbean’s cutest islands by ferry and never see another plane until it’s time to go home.

Head to the French side of the island and hang out in Grand Case, where your dining choices range from beach-shack casual to fine-French bistro. For beach time try the local favorite Friar’s Bay, then from Marigot, make the 25-minute ferry run to Anguilla. Once there, choose between two beaches: popular Shoal Bay East or the quieter, wind-swept Junk’s Hole.

Back on St-Martin/Sint Maarten, head down to Philipsburg for some retail therapy. Get a ferry to Saba, and enjoy views of its splendid volcano. Explore the small town of Windwardside, then head out for a hike up Mt Scenery. Rent some diving gear – waters here teem with nurse sharks.

Back in Philipsburg, take the ferry to St-Barthélemy. Have lunch at the gorgeous French capital of Gustavia, and then sun yourself on white-sand Anse de Colombier. Although St-Barth is fabled as a playground of the rich and famous, the beauty of the island is that this matters little once everybody’s in T-shirts and shorts.
You can join these two itineraries for a real island-hopping adventure. Just get a connecting flight from St Lucia to St Vincent and the Grenadines.

St Vincent is an island of boundless energy. Market days in Kingstown are joyfully chaotic as the streets teem with people. Explore some of the island’s unexplored lush countryside and enjoy panoramic vistas on a hike to Dark View Falls.

Catch a ferry for the one-hour ride to Bequia, the center of beach fun and nightlife in the Grenadines and quite possibly the best all-around little island in the Caribbean. Choose between fast and slow ferries and head down the Grenadines, stopping at one of the pretty islands of Canouan, Mayreau and Union Island & Tobago Cays. Take a day trip to snorkel amazing Tobago Cays. Catch a mail boat or hire a fishing boat and cross the aquatic border to Carriacou, the pint-sized sister island to Grenada, which you will reach by ferry. Once there, immerse yourself in St George’s, one of the Caribbean’s most charming capital cities.

Carolyn McCarthy
Cuba
Carolyn specializes in travel, culture and adventure in the Americas. She has written for National Geographic, Outside, BBC Magazine, Boston Globe and other publications. A former Fulbright fellow and Banff Mountain Grant recipient, she has documented life in the most remote corners of Latin America. Carolyn gained her expertise by researching guidebooks in diverse destinations. She has contributed to more than 30 guidebooks for Lonely Planet, including Colorado, USA, Argentina, Chile, Trekking in the Patagonian Andes, Panama, Peru and USA’s National Parks. For more information, visit www.carolynmccarthy.org or follow her Instagram travels at @masmerquen

Hugh McNaughtan
Bahamas, Turks & Caicos
A former English lecturer, Hugh swapped grant applications for visa applications, and turned his love of travel into a full-time thing. Having done a bit of restaurant-reviewing in his home town (Melbourne), he’s now eaten his way across four continents. He’s never happier than when on the road with his two daughters. Except perhaps on the cricket field.

Kevin Raub
Dominican Republic
Writer, Punta Cana & the Southeast, Península de Samaná, The Southwest & Península de Pedernales. Kevin Raub grew up in Atlanta and started his career as a music journalist in New York, working for Men’s Journal and Rolling Stone magazines. He almost didn’t accept this assignment, his third through the region, until he found out the road to Sabana de la Mar was finished – he just couldn’t bear another go on the formerly tortuous, pothole-ridden road. Follow him on Twitter and Instagram (@RaubOnTheRoad).

Andrea Schulte-Peevers
Antigua & Barbuda, Dominica, Montserrat, St Kitts & Nevis
Born and raised in Germany and educated in London and at UCLA, Andrea has traveled the distance to the moon and back in her visits to some 75 countries. She has earned her living as a professional travel writer for over two decades and authored or contributed to nearly 100 Lonely Planet titles as well as to newspapers, magazines and websites around the world. She also works as a travel consultant, translator and editor. Andrea’s destination expertise is especially strong when it comes to Germany, Dubai and the UAE, Crete and the Caribbean Islands. She makes her home in Berlin.

Polly Thomas
Trinidad & Tobago
Polly has been writing about the Caribbean for 20 years, authoring guide books to Jamaica, Antigua & Barbuda, St Lucia and Trinidad & Tobago. Having lived for five years in Port of Spain, Trinidad, she’s now back in her hometown, London, seeking out good roti and doubles whenever she can.

Luke Waterson
Puerto Rico
Raised in the remote Somerset countryside in Southwest England, Luke quickly became addicted to exploring out-of-the-way places. While completing a Creative Writing degree at the University of East Anglia, he shouldered his backpack and vowed to see as much of the world as possible. Fast-forward a few years and he has traveled the Americas from Alaska to Tierra del Fuego and developed an obsession for Soviet architecture and pre-Columbian ruins in equal measure. He divides his time between Wales and Slovakia, on which he keeps the world’s leading English-language content site on Slovak travel and culture, www.englishmaninslovakia.co.uk.

Karla Zimmerman
British Virgin Islands, US Virgin Islands
Karla lives in Chicago, where she eats doughnuts, yells at the Cubs, and writes stuff for books, magazines, and websites when she’s not doing the first two things. She has contributed to 40-plus guidebooks and travel anthologies covering destinations in Europe, Asia, Africa, North America, and the Caribbean – all of which are a long way from the early days, when she wrote about gravel for a construction magazine and got to trek to places like Fredonia, Kansas. To learn more, follow her on Instagram and Twitter (@karlazimmerman).
Brendan Sainsbury
Cuba
Born and raised in the UK in a town that never merits a mention in any guidebook (Andover, Hampshire), Brendan spent the holidays of his youth caravanning in the English Lake District and didn’t leave Blighty until he was nineteen. Making up for lost time, he’s since squeezed 70 countries into a sometimes precarious existence as a writer and professional vagabond. His rocking chair memories will probably include staging a performance of ‘A Comedy of Errors’ at a school in war-torn Angola, running 150 miles across the Sahara Desert in the Marathon des Sables, and hitchhiking from Cape Town to Kilimanjaro with an early, dog-eared copy of LP’s Africa on a Shoestring. In the last 11 years he has written over 40 books for Lonely Planet, from Castro’s Cuba to the canyons of Peru. When not scribbling research notes, Brendan likes partaking in ridiculous ‘endurance’ races, strumming old Clash songs on the guitar, and experiencing the pain and occasional pleasures of following Southampton Football Club.

Alex Egerton
Barbados, Grenada, St Lucia, St Vincent & the Grenadines
A news journalist by trade, Alex has worked for magazines, newspapers and media outlets on five continents. Having had his fill of musty newsrooms and the insatiable corporate appetite for superficial news, Alex decided to leap into travel writing in order to escape the mundane. He spends most of his time on the road checking under mattresses, sampling suspicious street food and chatting with locals as part of the research process for travel articles and guidebooks. A keen adventurer, Alex has hiked through remote jungles in Colombia, explored isolated tributaries of the mighty Mekong and taken part in the first kayak descent of a number of remote waterways in Nicaragua. When not on the road, you’ll find him at home amongst the colonial splendor of Popayán in southern Colombia.

Anna Kaminski
Jamaica
Having majored in Caribbean and Latin American history at university and having lived in Kingston and worked in Jamaica’s prisons and ghettos in 2006, Anna was thrilled to research Jamaica for Lonely Planet a second time. On this occasion, she drove the scenic and often gnarly back roads of west Jamaica, visited numerous plantation houses, hiked through rugged Cockpit Country, attended the Maroon Festival, attended the country’s second-largest reggae gig and went to Boston Bay in search of Jamaica’s best jerk pork. When not on the road for Lonely Planet, Anna calls London home.

Catherine Le Nevez
Anguilla, Saba, Sint Eustatius, St-Barthélemy, St-Martin/Sint Maarten
Catherine’s wanderlust kicked in when she roadtripped across Europe from her Parisian base aged four, and she’s been hitting the road at every opportunity since, travelling to around 60 countries and completing her Doctorate of Creative Arts in Writing, Masters in Professional Writing, and postgrad qualifications in Editing and Publishing along the way. Over the past dozen-plus years she’s written scores of Lonely Planet guides and articles covering Paris, France, Europe and far beyond. Her work has also appeared in numerous online and print publications. Topping Catherine’s list of travel tips is to travel without any expectations.

Tom Masters
Guadeloupe, Martinique
Dreaming since he could walk of going to the most obscure places on earth, Tom has always had a taste for the unknown. This has led to a writing career that has taken him all over the world, including North Korea, the Arctic, Congo and Siberia. Despite a brief spell living in the English countryside, Tom has always called London, Paris and Berlin home. After graduating with a degree in Russian literature from the University of London, Tom went to work in Russia as a journalist at the St Petersburg Times. This first writing job took him on to work at the BBC World Service in London, and as a freelance contributor to newspapers and magazines around the world, as well as working in documentary production for UK and US television companies. Tom indulges his love of communist architecture by living on Karl-Marx-Allee in Berlin’s Friedrichshain, but still returns regularly to the former Soviet Union for work. His most recent projects include guides to China, Central America and Venezuela. He can be found online at www.tommasters.net.
OUR STORY

A beat-up old car, a few dollars in the pocket and a sense of adventure. In 1972 that’s all Tony and Maureen Wheeler needed for the trip of a lifetime – across Europe and Asia overland to Australia. It took several months, and at the end – broke but inspired – they sat at their kitchen table writing and stapling together their first travel guide, Across Asia on the Cheap. Within a week they’d sold 1500 copies. Lonely Planet was born.

Today, Lonely Planet has offices in Franklin, London, Melbourne, Oakland, Dublin, Beijing and Delhi, with more than 600 staff and writers. We share Tony’s belief that ‘a great guidebook should do three things: inform, educate and amuse’.

OUR WRITERS

Mara Vorhees

Aruba, Bonaire, Cayman Islands, Curaçao Mara Vorhees writes about food, travel and family fun around the world. Her work has been published by BBC Travel, Boston Globe, Delta Sky, Vancouver Sun and more. For Lonely Planet, she regularly writes about destinations in Central America and Eastern Europe, as well as New England, where she lives. She often travels with her twin boys in tow, earning her an expertise in family travel. Follow their adventures and misadventures at www.havetwinswilltravel.com.

Paul Clammer

Jamaica Paul Clammer has worked as a molecular biologist, tour leader and travel writer. Since 2003 he has worked as a guidebook author for Lonely Planet, contributing to over 25 LP titles, covering swathes of South and Central Asia, West and North Africa and the Caribbean. In recent years he’s lived in Morocco, Jordan, Haiti and Fiji, as well as his native England. Find him online at paulclammer.com or on Twitter as @paulclammer. Paul also wrote the Plan and Survival Guide sections of this guidebook.

Ashley Harrell

Dominican Republic, Haiti After a brief stint selling day-spa coupons door-to-door in South Florida, Ashley decided she’d rather be a writer. She went to journalism grad school, convinced a newspaper to hire her, and starting covering wildlife, crime and tourism, sometimes all in the same story. She traveled widely and moved often, from a tiny NYC apartment to a vast California ranch to a jungle cabin in Costa Rica, where she started writing for Lonely Planet. From there her travels became more exotic and farther flung, and she still laughs when paychecks arrive.

Liza Prado

Puerto Rico Liza Prado has been a travel writer since 2003, when she made a move from corporate lawyering to travel writing (and never looked back). She’s written dozens of guidebooks and articles as well as apps and blogs to destinations throughout the Americas. She takes decent photos too. Liza is a graduate of Brown University and Stanford Law School. She lives in Denver, Colorado, with her husband and fellow LP writer, Gary Chandler, and their two kids.
