

Qīnghǎi

POP 5.7 MILLION

Includes ➤

- Xiníng 882
- Around Xiníng 888
- Tóngrénn (Repkong) 890
- Guidé 891
- Yúshù (Jyekundo) 893
- Around Yúshù 894
- Golmud 896

Best Monasteries & Temples

- ➡ Kumbum Monastery (p889)
- ➡ Yòuníng Monastery (p889)
- ➡ Lóngwù Sì (p890)
- ➡ Princess Wencheng Temple (p894)

Best Natural Sights

- ➡ Kanbula National Park (p889)
- ➡ Mt Amnye Machen (p892)
- ➡ Mèngdá Nature Reserve (p891)
- ➡ Zhálíng and Èlíng Lakes (p894)
- ➡ Nangchen County (p895)

Why Go?

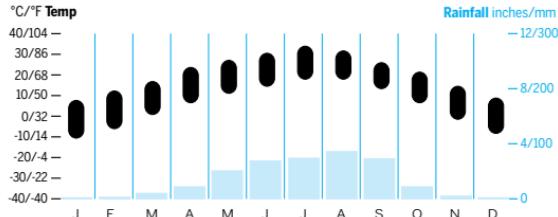

Big, bold and beautifully barren, Qīnghǎi (青海), larger than any country in the EU, occupies a vast swathe of the north-eastern chunk of the Tibetan Plateau. In fact, as far as Tibetans are concerned, this is Amdo, one of old Tibet's three traditional provinces. Much of what you'll experience here will feel more Tibetan than Chinese; there are monasteries galore, yaks by the hundred and nomads camped out across high-altitude grasslands.

Rough-and-ready, Qīnghǎi is classic off-the-beaten-track territory, often with a last-frontier feel to it. Travelling here can be both inconvenient and uncomfortable, though China's rapid development plans have begun to touch the province, with huge highways and new rail lines under construction.

Despite that, Qīnghǎi still delivers a heavy dose of solitude among middle-of-nowhere high-plateau vistas, Martian-like red mountains and encounters with remote communities of China's ethnic minorities.

When to Go

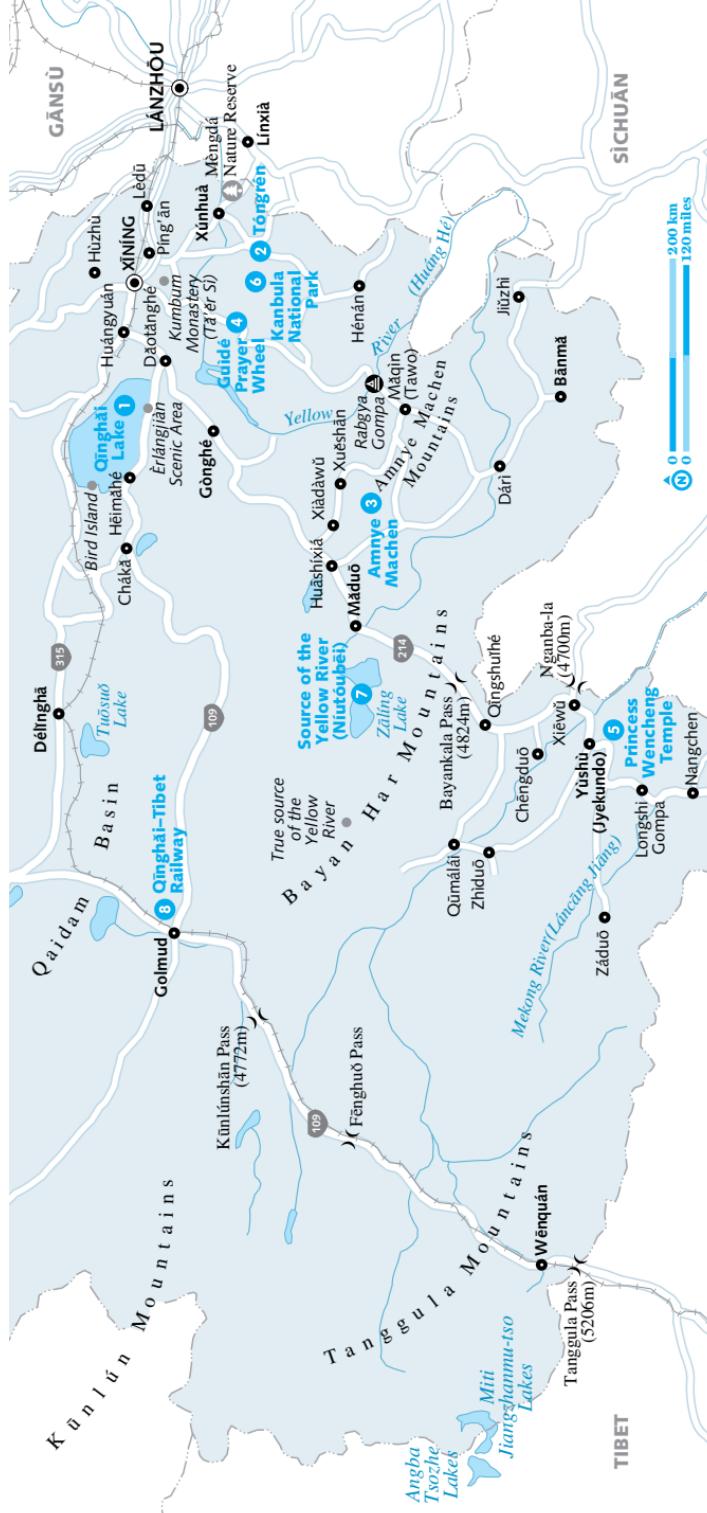

Xiníng

Jan & Feb Tibetan New Year (Losar), with lots of pilgrims and celebrations at monasteries.

Jul & Aug Grasslands at their greenest; landscape dotted with nomad tents.

Sep Safest and most comfortable time for hiking around Mt Amnye Machen.

Qinghai Highlights

- ➊ Birdwatch on the shores of Qinghai Lake (p888), the largest in China
- ➋ Buy a Tibetan thangka straight from the artist's easel in Tongren (p890)
- ➌ Trek on Mt Amnye Machen (p892), eastern Tibet's most sacred mountain
- ➍ Turn the world's largest prayer wheel near the walled Old Town of Guidé (p894)
- ➎ Sidestep the web of prayer flags on a hike around the hills beside Princess Wencheng Temple (p894)
- ➏ Hike among the Martian-like red mountains of Kanbulu National Park (p889)
- ➐ Venture across the Qinghai-Tibet plateau to the source of the Yellow River (p894)
- ➑ Take one of the world's great train rides, the Qinghai-Tibet Railway (p888) to Lhasa, at Xining or Golmud