Why Go?

Though the countries of Central and Eastern Europe emerged from communism a quarter-century ago, they still retain a feeling of the 'other' Europe – wilder, less-refined, and more remote than their cousins in the west. Medieval capitals like Prague, Kraków and Budapest number among the continent's most beautiful cities and belong on any first-timer's list. More exotic destinations such as Slovakia, Slovenia and Romania boast rustic charm and extreme natural beauty. All are members of the European Union.

The situation changes as you move further east. The former Soviet countries of Belarus, Ukraine, Moldova and Georgia lie well off the beaten track for most travellers and will appeal mainly to adventurers. Eastern Ukraine remains embroiled in conflict, though the western parts of the country, particularly the majestic cities of Kyiv and Lviv, are peaceful. Mountainous Georgia is one of the most beautiful countries anywhere.
