Why Go?

Britain, which includes England, Wales and Scotland, can be traversed from tip to toe in around half a day. However, you could spend a lifetime exploring this historic and beautiful island – from ancient Stonehenge and the great medieval cathedrals of Westminster, Canterbury and York, to the colleges of Oxford and Cambridge and the castles and magnificent scenery of Wales and Scotland.

West across the Irish Sea, lies Ireland, made up of the Republic and the British province of Northern Ireland. The Ireland of postcards very much exists. You'll find it along the peninsulas of the southwest, in the brooding loneliness of Connemara and the dramatic wildness of the Causeway Coast. This is also a very modern country, but some things endure. Linger in the yard of a thatched-cottage pub on a warm evening and you'll experience a country that has changed little in generations.
