AUTHOR THANKS

Anthony Ham

Shukran to all of those from Cairo to Istanbul and most places in between who have, on every visit, reinforced my love affair with the region. A heartfelt thanks to Marina, Carlota and Valentina, my three girls who make coming home the greatest gift in the world. My work on this book is dedicated to Ron, whose visit to Damascus all those years ago made it a true place of the soul.

Stuart Butler

It takes a very understanding wife to agree to let you go gallivanting around Iraq, so firstly I'd like to thank my wife Heather for her continued support and for everything else she does. Further thanks to my young son who had to do without playing hide-and-seek with his daddy once again. Thanks to photographer Toby Adamson and Marion Poizeau for company on the road, and Hauai Qaraman Rwndzy for patient driving along the Hamilton Road.

Zora O'Neill

A million thanks to my Cairo crew (Mandy, Amgad et al) and to my fellow authors on this title, as well as to Egypt authors Michael Benanav, Anthony Sattin and Jess Lee for dealing with last-minute queries on their very well-researched contributions. Back at the head office, thanks to Anthony Ham, Kate Morgan (bon voyage!), Brigitte Ellemor and Adrian Persoglia for wrestling it all into shape.

Olivia Pozzan

Thanks to everyone who helped me discover the confusion and beauty of Lebanon: Pierre in Byblos for his generosity, Jamil in Beirut for his hospitality, and Ronnie for an entertaining walk through Beirut's chequered past. Warmest thanks to Pat, a true friend when I needed one.

Daniel Robinson

The countless people who showed great generosity with their time include (from north to south) Michael Benz, Kerstin Göring, Daniel Flatauer, David Friedman, Moshe Tov Kreps, Yair Moore, Maoz Yinon, the Fauzi Azar staff (especially Sami), Joseph Marotta, Sarah Yefet, Yafa Kfir and Amiram, Nissim Bados, Yaron Burgin, David Berger, Raz Zabar and Gil Shkedi. This project would not have been possible without the extraordinary backstopping and forbearance of my wife, Rachel Safman, and the patience of my mother-in-law, Edie Safman.

Anthony Sattin

I was unable to travel in Syria specifically for this book, but would like to thank the following people for help with recent journeys: Bashar al-Ash of Syriaana Travel, Adli Qudsi of Friends of Aleppo Citadel, the directors of Damascus and Aleppo museums, Nabil Maleh, Yaser Al Saghrji and 1001 people who smoothed the way, helped me find what I wanted, brightened dull moments and assisted in various ways.

Paul Smith

Thanks to everybody I met on the road, particularly Amos Burr, Sebastian Silva, Joel Selby and Finn Robinson. Anthony, Kate and Brigitte all found time to help me with silly questions and Adrian was just as patient with the maps. Carol and Shawn always make sure that coming home is even more fun than travelling. Thanks to Mum and Dad for proof reading, and welcome to the family Tom! Margie, this one is for you. Miss you loads!

Jenny Walker

Returning to Jordan is always the greatest of pleasures, not just on account of the spectacular wonders of the country, but also because Jordanians continue to go out of their way to be hospitable – including His Excellency, Nayef Hmeidi al-Fayez, Minister of Tourism & Antiquities. While their assistance in researching this chapter is hugely appreciated, I reserve greatest thanks for my beloved husband, Sam Owen, who accompanied me during research and assisted immeasurably in resourcing further background information during write-up.
