Why Go?

If your New Zealand travels thus far have been all about the great outdoors and sleepy rural towns, Wellington will blow the cobwebs away. Art-house cinemas, funky boutiques, hip bars, live bands and endless restaurants all await you in NZ's cultural capital.

Wellington is the crossing point between the North and South Islands, so travellers have long been passing through these parts. The likes of Te Papa and Zealandia now stop visitors in their tracks, and even a couple of days' pause will reveal myriad other attractions: a windswept harbour with a walkable waterfront, hillsides clad in pretty weatherboard houses, urban surprises and some of the freshest city air on the planet.

Less than an hour away to the north, the Kapiti Coast has a slower, beachy vibe, with Kapiti Island nature reserve a highlight. An hour away to the northeast over the Rimutaka Range, the Wairarapa plains are dotted with quiet towns, farms and hip wineries, hemmed in by rugged, wild coastline.

When to Go

- ➔ Wellington has a bad rep for blustery, cold, grey weather, but this isn't the whole story: 'Windy Welly' breaks out into blue skies and T-shirt temperatures at least several days a year, when you'll hear locals exclaim, 'You can't beat Wellington on a good day'.
- ➔ November to April are the warmer months here, with average maximums hovering around 20°C. From May to August it's colder and wetter – daily temperatures lurk around 12°C.
- ➔ The Kapiti Coast and Wairarapa are a different story – both warmer and less windy, with more blue-sky days to bask in.

i Getting There & Away

Wellington is a major transport hub, being the North Island port for the interisland ferries (p365). Long-distance KiwiRail Scenic Journey (www.kiwirailscenic.co.nz) trains run from Wellington to Auckland via Palmerston North. Wellington Airport (p365) is serviced by international and domestic airlines.

InterCity (www.intercity.co.nz) is the main North Island bus company, travelling just about everywhere. Approaching Wellington city from the north, you'll pass through either the Kapiti Coast to the west via SH1, or the Wairarapa and Hutt Valley to the east via SH2.
