Why Go?

Kiss the tourist hype goodbye – and say a warm malo e lelei (hello!) to the Kingdom of Tonga. Resolutely sidestepping flashy resorts and packaged cruise-ship schtick, Tonga is unpolished, gritty and unfailingly authentic. Life here ticks along at its own informal pace: church life is all pervasive, chickens and pigs have right of way, and there's nothing that can't wait until tomorrow. You don't have to seek out a cultural experience in Tonga – it's all around you!

Once you've shifted down into 'Tonga time', you'll find these islands awash with gorgeous beaches, low-key resorts, myriad snorkelling, diving, yachting and kayaking opportunities, hiking trails, rugged coastlines and affable locals (especially the kids!). Gear up for some active pursuits, then wind down with a cool sunset drink to the sound of waves folding over the reef. In Tonga, there really is nothing that can't wait until tomorrow.

When to Go

Nuku'alofa

Jun–Oct

Peak season: stable weather, warm seas and buzzy waterside restaurants.

Apr–Aug

Cool, dry and less humid (winter) – when yachties turn up to play.

Nov–Mar

Warm and wet in the South Seas summer, but fine for water sports.

Tonga Highlights

- Kayaking (p168) between the reefs and islands offshore from Nuku'alofa, Neiafu and Pangai.
- Hiking tropical rainforests and along sheer ocean cliffs on 'Eua (p178).
- Pondering Tongatapu's curious Ha'amonga 'a Maui Trilithon (p176), the 'Stonehenge of the South Pacific'.
- Beach-bumming on the photogenic sands of Uoleva (p184), and (if you're lucky) watching whales breaching offshore.
- Catching the cultural show at Tongatapu's Oholei Beach & Hina Cave Feast & Show (p444).
- Swimming into Swallows' Cave (p194) on Kapa island in Vava'u.
- Bouncing between bars and cafes in raffish Neiafu (p186).
- Exploring far-off, doughnut-shaped Niufo'ou, also known as Tin Can Island (p196) in the Niua Group.
- Surfing the reef breaks at Ha'atafu Beach (p177) on Tongatapu.
- Wandering aisles of produce and crafts at Nuku'alofa's Talamahu Market (p167).
- Sailing (p187) through Vava'u's psychedelic web of waterways, islands and deserted beaches.
