

Singapore Walking Tour

This amble around the old Colonial District and Marina Bay takes you from the Singapore of Sir Stamford Raffles to the cutting-edge visions of 21st-century architects.

Start MRT City Hall

Distance 3.5km

Duration Four to five hours

1 Step into elegant St Andrew's Cathedral, used as an emergency hospital during WWII and a fine example of English Gothic-Revival architecture.

There are lots of restaurants and bars in the National Gallery Singapore, some with great views across the Padang.

2 Two colonial dames, City Hall and the Old Supreme Court, have been combined to house the National Gallery Singapore.

8 The controversial aluminium shades of Esplanade – Theatres on the Bay reference Asian reed-weaving geometries and maximise natural light.

4 Multicoloured Old Hill Street Police Station was proclaimed a 'skyscraper' upon completion in 1934. The building now houses several high-end art galleries.

5 The riverfront shophouses in Boat Quay are home to bars, restaurants and snap-happy tourists. Look out for Salvador Dali's Homage to Newton and other sculptures.

3 The Victoria Theatre & Concert Hall is one of Singapore's first Victorian Revivalist buildings. Before it is the original Raffles statue, which once stood at the Padang.

6 Soaring beside the Cavenagh Bridge, constructed in Scotland and reassembled in Singapore in 1869, is the mighty Fullerton Hotel, Singapore's general post office until 1996.

7 Take a 'wacky' photo with the famous Merlion statue, an iconic Singapore sight. It's a great place to see Marina Bay Sands' light-and-laser show.
