

This is a stylized map of a section of Granada, Spain. The map features a network of white lines representing streets. A prominent yellow line, representing the Gran Vía de Colón, runs diagonally from the top left towards the bottom right. In the top left corner, there is a black icon of a train and the text 'Train Station'. In the bottom right corner, the word 'Alhambra' is written in a bold, black font, with a black icon of the Alhambra's towers below it. The map also includes green areas representing parks or gardens and blue lines representing water features like the Rio Genil. The overall style is clean and modern, typical of digital mapping applications.
