Upper West Side & Central Park
Walking past brownstones on quiet side streets still makes you feel like you've stepped out of a New York movie.

Upper East Side
Home to the so-called 'Museum Mile' – one of the most cultured strips in New York (and possibly the world).

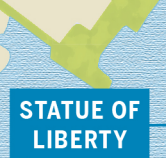

West Village, Chelsea & the Meatpacking District
Mellow and raucous, quaint and sleekly contemporary, it's a 'hood to call your own.

SoHo & Chinatown
Offering a delicious, contradictory jumble of cast-iron architecture, strutting fashionistas, temples and hook-hung salami.

Financial District & Lower Manhattan
Bold, architectural icons, eateries and a booming residential population; it's no longer strictly business here.

ELLIS ISLAND

STATUE OF LIBERTY

Midtown
The hub of the city, and according to boosters, the crossroads of the world; Midtown is the NYC of postcards.

Union Square, Flatiron District & Gramercy
A mix of Hare Krishnas, skateboarders, street-wise chess champions and New Yorkers of all stripes.

East Village & Lower East Side
Two of the city's hottest 'hoods: they're inspiring, lively and the perfect places to be young, or young at heart.
