Canberra Neighbourhoods

Acton
Students from the nearby Australian National University bring a youthful exuberance to this developing pocket of urban cool.

Dickson & the North
Stretching out into bushland on every side, Canberra’s leafy northern suburbs have plenty of self-contained village centres to explore.

Parliament, Parkes & Barton
Canberra’s lakeside cultural quarter is home to Parliament House and several world-class museums.

Kingston & Manuka
These busy village centres are packed with locals on weekends, when you can cafe-hop all the way to the newly developed foreshore.

Braddon
This old industrial area is quickly becoming Canberra’s hottest suburb, with more baristas per square metre than anywhere else in town.

Civic
The city’s central business district offers more than its fair share of excellent places to drink and dine.

National Arboretum
