

ON THE BANGKOK CHAO PHRAYA RIVER: p158

DUBROVNIK ON THE DALMATIAN COAST: p176

Contents

oreword	6	Inside Passage Day Cruise (Canada)	74		Cigarette Boat on the Tonlé Sap (Cambodia)	162	Oceania
bout this Book	8	Journey Between the Seas (Panama)	78				Marquesas Islands (French Polynesia)	24
		The Bahamas by Mailboat (The Bahamas)	82	S	Europe		Sydney's Manly Ferry (Australia)	25
Africa & the Middle East		Río de la Plata (Argentina and Uruguay)	86	MAG	Danube Cruise (Germany to Hungary)	168	Cargo Freighter to Pitcairn (Pitcairn Islands)	25
Chobe River Safari (Botswana and Namibia)	12	Lake Titicaca (Peru)	90	GE TJ	Llangollen Canal (UK)	172	Cook Strait Ferry (New Zealand)	26
elucca Nile Journey (Egypt)	16	Amazon Exploration (Peru)	94	×	Dalmatian Coast (Croatia)	176	Kimberley Coast Cruise (Australia)	26
Okavango Delta Mokoro (Botswana)	22	The Galápagos Islands (Ecuador)	100	NET Y	Queen Mary 2 (USA to UK)	182	Sailing Ningaloo Reef (Australia)	27
siribihina Descent (Madagascar)	26	Patagonia and Tierra del Fuego (Chile)	106	Y PLAI	Venice's Grand Canal (Italy)	186	North Island's Hauraki Gulf (New Zealand)	27
Oubai Creek Abra (UAE)	30			N N N N N N N N N N N N N N N N N N N	Volga River (Russia)	190	Coastal New Guinea (Papua New Guinea)	28
Cape Town Fishing Vessel (South Africa)	34	Asia		SAD / I	Bosphorus Strait (Turkey)	194	·
		Komodo National Park (Indonesia)	114	ES; ®	Canal du Midi (France)	198	Ends of the Earth
mericas		Halong Bay (Vietnam)	118	MAG M	Aran Islands Pilgrimage (Ireland)	202	Marine Mammals Expedition (Antarctica)	28
Mississippi Paddle Steamer (USA)	40	Okinawa Islands (Japan)	124	AGES	Santander to Portsmouth Ferry (Spain to UK)	208	The World Cruise (Global)	29
laine Windjammer (USA)	46	Kerala Backwaters (India)	128	2CK / 2 	Aegean Islands (Greece)	212
lorida Glass-Bottom Boats (USA)	50	Mekong River (Vietnam and Cambodia)	134	Y/GE	On the Thames (UK)	218	Index	29
ake Powell Houseboat (USA)	54	Mahakam River (Indonesia)	140	RAPH GG	Blue Cruise (Turkey)	222	Acknowledgements	30
taten Island Ferry (USA)	58	Star Ferry (Hong Kong)	144	M LEF	Northern Isles (UK)	228	- liagara Falls Up Close (Canada)	62	Yangtze River (China)	148	E	Hurtigruten Fjords (Norway)	232
arctic Circle Cruise (Greenland and Canada)	66	Along the Ayeyarwady (Myanmar)	154	NNY +	Paris on the Seine (France)	238
an Juan Islands (USA)	70	Bangkok's Chao Phraya River (Thailand)	158	© KEI	Baltic Sea Crossing (Finland to Sweden)	242

Komodo National Park

INDONESIA

There are a dozen reasons to take one of these voyages through some of Indonesia's most stunning islands, assuming you even need a reason at all: who doesn't want to glide idly past uninhabited islands, bathe in azure water and hike to stunning viewpoints? But in addition to all that, on your tour around the islands of Komodo National Park you might possibly catch sight of a dragon. While the chances are slim that you'll actually get eaten, you'll feel a bit like you're walking behind the professor in Jurassic Park, knowing that a hungry reptile might come crashing out through the bushes. Just don't laugh it off too much - male Komodo dragons can weigh as much as 200 lbs (90kg), and can run faster than you'd expect.

RIDING THE WAVES

There are any number of ways to make the trip through the islands of Komodo National Park, from day jaunts to simple overnights to two-, three-, even week-long (or longer!) excursions that will make you feel like you've got all the time in the world. Many of the medium-length trips begin on the island of Flores, known for coffee and its quiet fishing lifestyle. The airport in Labuan Bajo is only 15 minutes from the docks; you board your craft, and within moments the motors are humming and you're heading out to sea.

A common itinerary zips you to Manta Point for a swim with these giant underwater gliders, then a stop at Komodo's Pink Beach. Depending on the time of day, Pink Beach may or may not be pink - the colour comes not from the sand but from the sun's angle, the tide and the weather conditions. Without the pink, Pink Beach is just a typical beach; though pretty, it's one of the few stops that you might consider optional. From there, head to a nearby harbour, have dinner and watch as thousands of flying foxes (a fruit-eating bat) emerge from their daytime shelters and head off in search of food. This is not a 'tornado' of bats like some insecteating, cave-dwelling bats create, but it's a beautiful scene and makes a lovely end to a day on the water.

Day two, done right, will include Komodo Island in the morning, as the lizards are most active and visible when they're hungry. You'll arrive at the dock shortly after breakfast, pay the Komodo National Park fees and choose a viewing path: short, medium, or long. Though results vary because the animals are wild, chances are you'll soon be taking a selfie with (well, actually behind and a safe distance away from) the famed Komodo dragon. The jungle here is fascinating, filled with unique flora and birds, so even if you only see a few lizards, it's a lovely and interesting visit. Eventually the trail will circle back, and you'll end with the option to buy some T-shirts and souvenirs.

What happens next will depend on the weather, because while you can get up close and personal with the dragons rain or shine, the view from Padar Island's lookout peak just isn't quite the same if it's cloudy, rainy or obscured by fog. If the day is clear and bright, the boat will head here next, and you'll have an unrivalled view of Padar Island's perfect scalloped bays, with turquoise water surrounding green hills so beautiful they seem computergenerated. It's one of the world's greatest views, and your trip won't be complete without it.

On day three, you'll repeat the Komodo dragon

HEED THE RANGERS' WARNINGS

Never venture out into the jungle on your own.
Rangers are trained not only in seeing Komodo dragons (which are masters at camouflage) but also in defending against them. In 2017 a Singaporean tourist was badly mauled by a lizard when he tried to enter the Komodo National Park alone to avoid paying the entry fee.

experience but on Rinca Island. Rinca, smaller but more wild, offers a good chance to see lizards if you didn't see them (or didn't see enough of them) on Komodo Island. From here, the boat will chug or sail its way back to Labuan Bajo, arriving in early to late afternoon. Longer voyages will see more, do more, stop more and explore more, but these highlights are the region's crowning glories.

9 LIFE ON BOARD

Tour operators vary widely. In most cases the tours will not include the Komodo National Park fees, but some of the higher-end ones do. Low-end tours will include a simple cabin room and three meals (simple but tasty Indonesian food), and may or may not have fans for cooling; they will not have English guides. Higher-end trips will include a cabin with air-conditioning, an English-speaking guide/captain, gourmet-quality food, and possibly dive or snorkel equipment. While most boats are motorised, you may want to opt for the quiet serenity of a sailing vessel.

OTHER ROUTES

Another route begins the voyage not in Flores but in Lombok, where you visit some island villages, view boat-making and see other tourist sites before embarking. On the way to the Komodo area, you'll likely stop at Satonda Island, a doughnut-shaped island with an ocean-filled crater in the centre.

9 MAKE IT HAPPEN

Tours depart daily, weekly, or several times monthly depending on the length and the package. You can book through any number of tour companies, but be careful in your choice as some operators are less than scrupulous. A round trip from Labuan Bajo on Flores is popular; the best time of year to go is March. All visits to the dragons must be done with a guide. RB

CLOCKWISE FROM TOP: Padar Island in the Komodo National Park; a Komodo dragon; a beach on Gili Air island. PREVIOUS PAGE: Boat moored at Kelor Island.

Swim with giant manta rays in waters that seem too turquoise to be real off Manta Point.

If the sun and weather combine in the right way, see why Komodo Island's Pink Beach gets its name.

Watch flying foxes silhouetted by a coral sunset when the boat stops for the night.

Take a selfie up close and personal with the world's largest lizard in Komodo National Park.

Hike on Padar Island to one of the world's most incredible scenic views.

Snorkel in crystal-clear water at Kanawa Island, seeing fish, turtles and coral galore.

116

Danube Cruise

GERMANY TO HUNGARY

START PASSAU, GERMANY
END BUDAPEST, HUNGARY

DISTANCE 364 MILES
(586KM)

8
BDAYS

No other river in the world runs by as many capital cities as the Danube, and cruising down this mighty European waterway along the stretch that links three of them – Vienna in Austria, Bratislava in Slovakia and Budapest in Hungary – is an itinerary like no other. With stylish travel practically mandatory as you voyage through some of Central Europe's most sophisticated cities, sign up for waltzing in Vienna and spa basking in Budapest. In between, take in views reminiscent of paintings by the Old Masters. Whether or not you add on the Danube's fourth capital of Belgrade, Serbia, this will be a trip of a lifetime.

• RIDING THE WAVES

The scenes visible on a glide down this dignified river may remind you of the celebrated canvases of the continent's great artists or call up the strains of a waltz, given that some of Europe's most iconic artists took their inspiration from these landscapes. The Danube's dramatic vistas have sparked many a monumental work of art, from paintings by Albrecht Altdorfer to music by Johann Strauss.

Cruises tend to begin in opulent Passau, a German city made wealthy as a trade centre at a joining point for three major rivers, the Inn and the Ilz as well as the Danube. From the stunning church of Dom St Stephan, home of the planet's largest church organ, to the imposing fortress of Veste Oberhaus, it is a fitting point from which to embark on a trip that takes a

