Prevention is the key to staying healthy in Morocco, and a little planning before departure will save you trouble later. With luck, your worst complaint on your trip will be a bad stomach; infections are usually associated with poor living conditions and poverty, and can be avoided with a few precautions. Car accidents are a common reason for travellers to need medical help. Medical facilities can be excellent in large cities, but in more remote areas may be basic.

VITAL PRACTICAL INFORMATION TO HELP YOU HAVE A SMOOTH TRIP

- Health
  - Adequate health insurance is vital when travelling to Morocco. The national health service isn’t always great and the few good private medical facilities may be essential for serious problems.
  - Some policies offer lower and higher medical-expense options; the higher ones are especially for countries such as the USA, which have extremely high medical costs.
  - Medical Checklist Consider packing the following items in your medical kit:
    - antibiotics (if travelling off the beaten track)
    - antibacterial hand gel
    - antidiarrhoeal drugs (e.g., loperamide)
    - paracetamol or aspirin
    - anti-inflammatory drugs (e.g., ibuprofen)
    - antihistamines (for hay fever and allergic reactions)
    - antibacterial ointment (e.g., Bactroban) for cuts and abrasions
    - steroid cream or cortisone (for allergic rashes)
- Insurance
  - Your policy should ideally cover emergency air evacuation home, or transport by plane or ambulance to a hospital in a major city, which may be essential for serious problems.
  - Find out which private medical service your insurer uses in Morocco so that you can call them direct in the event of an emergency.
- Vaccinations
  - Don’t leave health matters to the last minute: some vaccines don’t ensure immunity for two weeks, so visit a doctor beforehand.
  - Medications
    - Bring in their original, clearly labelled containers.
    - A signed and dated letter from your physician describing your medical conditions and medications, including generic names, is also helpful.
    - If carrying syringes or needles, ensure you have a physician’s letter documenting their medical necessity.
    - See your dentist before a long trip; carry a spare pair of contact lenses and glasses (and take your optical prescription with you).
- Insurance
  - Adequate health insurance is vital when travelling to Morocco. The national health service isn’t always great and the few good private medical facilities may be essential for serious problems.
  - Some policies offer lower and higher medical-expense options; the higher ones are especially for countries such as the USA, which have extremely high medical costs.
  - Medical Checklist Consider packing the following items in your medical kit:
    - antibiotics (if travelling off the beaten track)
    - antibacterial hand gel
    - antidiarrhoeal drugs (e.g., loperamide)
    - paracetamol or aspirin
    - anti-inflammatory drugs (e.g., ibuprofen)
    - antihistamines (for hay fever and allergic reactions)
    - antibacterial ointment (e.g., Bactroban) for cuts and abrasions
    - steroid cream or cortisone (for allergic rashes)

THIS EDITION WRITTEN AND RESEARCHED BY

James Bainbridge,
Alison Bing, Paul Clammer, Helen Ranger
MARRAKESH & CENTRAL MOROCCO .......... 52

MARRAKESH .......... 56
EAST OF MARRAKESH .... 91
Demnate .......... 91
Cascades d’Ouzoud .... 93
Azilal .......... 94
Aït Bougomez Valley ..... 95
Zaouiat Ahansal .......... 102
Cathédrale des Rochers & Reserve Naturelle de Tamga .......... 103
Bin el-Ouidane .......... 103
SOUTH OF MARRAKESH .......... 103
Ourika Valley .......... 103
Toubkal & High Atlas .......... 109
To Tizi n’Test .......... 119
To Tizi n’Tichka .......... 119
Zat Valley .......... 120
Telouet .......... 121
Aït Benhaddou .......... 123
Ouarzazate .......... 124
DRÂA VALLEY .......... 128
Agdz .......... 128
Agdz to Zagora .......... 131
Zagora .......... 132
South of Zagora .......... 135
M’Hamid .......... 136
Erg Chigaga to Tizi n’Tichka .......... 138
DADÈS VALLEY & THE GORGES .......... 139
Skoura .......... 140
Kelaâ M’Gouna .......... 141
Boumalne du Dadès .......... 142
Trekking Jebel Sarhro .......... 143
Dades Gorge .......... 146
Tinerhir .......... 148
Todra Gorge .......... 149
Tinejdad .......... 151
Goulmima .......... 151
ZIZ VALLEY & THE TAFILALT .......... 153
Er-Rachidia .......... 153
Around Er-Rachidia .......... 154
Erfoud .......... 155
Rissani .......... 156
Merzouga .......... 158
Taouz .......... 161
RISSANI TO ZAGORA .......... 161
N’Kob, Tazzarine & Alnif .......... 161
ATLANTIC COAST .......... 164
CASABLANCA (DAR AL-BÂÏDA) .......... 166
RABAT .......... 184
NORTH OF RABAT .......... 199
Salé .......... 199
Around Rabat & Salé .......... 201
Moulay Bousselham .......... 202
Larache .......... 204
Lixus .......... 206
Assilah .......... 207
SOUTH OF CASABLANCA .......... 213
Marrakesh
Join the party on the Djemaa el-Fna (p59)

Taroudannt
Circle the medina’s red-mud ramparts (p372)

Tafroute
The Ameln Valley activities centre (p378)

Sidi Ifni
Atmospheric seaside art-deco relics (p392)
Top Experiences

Assilah
Mural colour the seaside medina (p207)

Chefchaouen
A blue medina in the Rif Mountains (p267)

Volubilis
Roman mosaics, arches and olive presses (p337)

Fez
Explore the medina and tanneries (p300)

Moulay Idriss
The whitewashed hilltop pilgrimage site (p340)

Figuig
An oasis town with mudbrick kasbahs (p358)

Erg Chebbi
Ride a dromedary into the dunes (p158)

High Atlas
Sublime peaks and Berber villages (p109)

Drâa Valley
Hop between kasbahs and oases (p128)

Erg Chigaga
Saharan dune hikes by moonlight (p136)

Anti Atlas
Trek in the granite mountain range (p378)
Two Weeks
Kasbah Crawl

Start with an all-singing, all-snake-charming bang on Marrakesh’s Djemaa el-Fna, where acrobats, Gnawa musicians, meat grillers, dentists and storytellers converge at sunset. Toast the madness with a freshly squeezed juice from a stall piled with oranges. You could easily spend a week here, getting lost in the medina, buying a carpet, soaking in the hammam and getting lost again. But tear yourself away after a few days and take the Tizi n’Tichka pass (2260m), surrounded by the High Atlas mountains, to Aït Benhaddou’s mudbrick kasbah.

Unless you’re making a film, only hang around in Ouarzazate long enough to watch the crowds disappear up the Dadès Valley, then head down the kasbah-dotted Drâa Valley. At the far end is one of Morocco’s open seas of Saharan dunes, Erg Chigaga, where you can appreciate the desert’s silent majesty on a moonlight hike.

If time allows, take a different route back to Marrakesh via Taliouine, the saffron centre beneath the Anti Atlas mountains. Cross the High Atlas on the Tizi n’Test before ending your trip on Essaouira’s Atlantic-facing ramparts, a few hours from Marrakesh and Agadir.

Whether you’ve got six days or 60, these itineraries provide a starting point for the trip of a lifetime. Want more inspiration? Head online to lonelyplanet.com/thorntree to chat with other travellers.
With a month at your disposal and taking a little time to rest, you can get a taste of the best Morocco has to offer, by journeying from the sea to the Sahara and back again. Touch down in northern Morocco at Casablanca, the commercial capital, and if you get caught overnight, start the next day with a tour of Hassan II Mosque, the world’s third-largest mosque. Head to the easternmost imperial cities and plunge into the more romantic, historic Morocco in their medieval medinas. In Meknès, wander between the buildings and squares left by Sultan Moulay Ismail and his followers; in Fez, venerable heart of Moroccan religious and cultural life, seeing donkeys carrying animal skins to the tanneries is like looking back in time.

Next, leave behind the noise and hassles of the city and head south to the relatively under-visited Middle Atlas around Ifrane. The resort stands at the heart of some stunning mountain and woodland scenery, offering enticing possibilities for hiking. Further south, the Barbary apes in the forests and hills around Azrou are one of Moroccan wildlife’s most mischievous sights, and the landscape is even more scenic around Midelt. The road through the delightful palm-and-kasr (fortified stronghold) terrain of the Ziz Valley is one of the country’s most beautiful journeys, crossing the eastern High Atlas to Merzouga, southeastern Morocco’s gateway to the Sahara. Lorded over by towering dunes, the village is an ideal spot to saddle up a camel or strap on a sandboard, and sleep under the stars amid Morocco’s largest sand sea, the perfectly sculpted Erg Chebbi.

Shadowing the High Atlas as you head west brings you to the sharp cleft of the Todra Gorge. From here, you can travel through dramatic boulder-strewn valleys, full of nomad camps in springtime, into the Dadès Gorge. If time allows, strike out from Boumalne du Dadès for some spectacular trekking around the M’Goun Massif or Jebel Sarhro, before heading past Ouarzazate to Aït Benhaddou, with its fairytale-like 11th-century kasbah.

En route to the Atlantic, check into a luxurious riad in Marrakesh, spend as many sunsets as possible on the theatrical Djemaa el-Fna, and then don’t stop until you reach Essaouira’s artsy seaside medina.
Morocco is far more than trendy riads and tourist hordes shuttling between hotel, souq and sun lounger. This itinerary takes you deep into the south for wild mountain and desert landscapes, far from clicking cameras, with plenty of activities to stimulate the mind and body.

Agadir is a handy entry point, but adventurers will want to leave quickly. Head to tiny but vibey Tafraoute, surrounded by beautiful Anti Atlas scenery such as the Ameln Valley, with its lush palmeraies (palm groves) and pink-hued houses. Spend a few days trekking through the valley and up Jebel L’Kest, bike past rock formations and engravings to the surreal Painted Rocks, and continue south through the Aït Mansour Gorges. At the far end of the gorges, where the beautiful scenery belies the ancient slave routes that passed this way, stay in the Afella-Ighir oasis. Use Tiwadou as a base for more trekking or discovering the rock carvings at Ukas.

By now you’ve developed a taste for Morocco’s secluded southern corners. Once back in Tafraoute, wind east through the Anti Atlas and descend to the equally silent and epic Sahara. The last stop before Jebel Bani and a whole lot of hammada (stony desert), Tata makes a convenient base for exploring the oases, kasbahs, agadirs (fortified granaries) and magnificent rock engravings in spots such as Akka. A dusty journey to the east, Erg Chigaga’s yellow-gold dunes are more remote and less visited than Merzouga. In nearby M’Hamid, find yourself a camel to lead you north into the kasbah-littered Drâa Valley.

At the top of valley, head back towards the mountains (this time, Jebel Sarhro and the High Atlas). Commandeer a bike (mountain or motor), horse, mule or dromedary in film favourite Ouarzazate, where the stony desert landscape has been a celluloid stand-in for Tibet, Rome, Somalia and Egypt. Return to the coast via Taliouine, where you can buy the world’s most expensive spice in Africa’s saffron capital. Pause here or in Taroudannt for a trekking reprise in a mountainous area such as the Tichka Plateau. With its red walls and backdrop of snowcapped peaks, Taroudannt has hassle-free echoes of Marrakesh. Its souqs and squares are pleasant places to enjoy some well-deserved chillaxation, and it’s handy for Agadir’s Al-Massira Airport.
Three Weeks

The Med & The Mountains

While the previous itinerary suggested heading south to escape the crowds, a northern alternative is Morocco’s Mediterranean littoral and Rif Mountains. The region has seen huge investment from the government and there are plans to push tourism in the area. If you get in now, you’ll be ahead of the pack.

Start in Tangier, ideally arriving by ferry across the Strait of Gibraltar to feel the thrill of crossing from Europe to Africa. In the mid-20th century, characters from gunrunners to Beatnik literati mixed in this legendary port city. After a few days taking in the history, nightlife and restaurants, skip inland to Tetouan, the old capital of Spanish Morocco, with its charming blend of Arab medina and Andalusian architecture. The Spanish left a lighter imprint on nearby Chefchaouen, nestled in the Rif Mountains with its gorgeous blue-painted medina. It’s tempting to spend a string of sunsets listening to the minarets chorus each other’s call to prayer, but this is a good trekking spot. You can head deep into the mountains on a five-day trek via riverside Akchour to Bou Ahmed, a fishing village in the Oued Bouchia valley.

Continue east along the coast to the proud, modern seaside resort Al-Hoceima, gateway to the National Park of Al-Hoceima’s dry canyons and limestone cliffs. You can walk to the park along the coast, or book a memorable tour including hiking or mountain biking and a homestay with a Berber family. En route to the Algerian border, there’s more fine scenery in the Beni-Snassen Mountains, which you can enjoy in a swimming pool with mountain views, or a 300-year-old rural lodge. With its gorges, caves, mesa and Barbary sheep, this verdant area is far removed from classic images of Morocco. In the Zegzel Gorge, pluck a cumquat and see why the Romans remarked on this small citrus fruit.

From here, head to Oujda to refresh yourself with some city comforts, before taking the train to that grandest of imperial cities, Fez. Dive into the medina and relax in a riad, but if you find yourself missing the countryside, you can make an easy day (or several-day) trip into the cedar-clad Middle Atlas around the Berber market town of Azrou.
Climb off a ferry in famously decadent Tangier, with its Europe-facing medina, and head into the Rif Mountains. The influence of that continent across the Med continues in Chefchaouen, with its bright blue, Andalucian-tinted medina. Further south, the imperial cities Meknès and Fez are more quintessentially Moroccan in their ancient medinas.

After a few days of labyrinthine lanes and dye pits, you’ll be ready for some more mountains. Wind through the Middle Atlas to the Berber village of Midelt, then on through the Martian landscape of the Ziz Gorges. It’s now just a few dusty hours to Erg Chebbi, the achingly beautiful expanse of rolling dunes, which you can explore on a camel or sandboard.

Brush off the Sahara and return to the High Atlas at Todra Gorge. Hike between the enclosing rock walls, then jump in a market-bound truck through villages where the main activity is sipping mint tea. High in the mountains, Imilchil, surrounded by red rock and turquoise lakes, is the site of a wedding moussem (festival) in September.

Descend through the Middle Atlas and turn southwest, pausing to refuel in Berber foodie and cultural hub Demnate. The next stop, Marrakesh, needs no introduction with its famous riad hotels, medina shopping and Djemaa el-Fna. Hit the Wild West coast at hippie-turned-boutique hang-out Essaouira, then head south to vibrant Taghazout, Morocco’s premier surf spot. Leave the waves for a second time and take the N10 to Taroudannt, the Souss Valley’s prettiest market town with its mud-walled medina and kasbah.

The mountains get more barren as you travel the empty roads to Tata, a Saharan gateway where blue-robed guides can show you the desert. The road from here back to the Atlantic passes oases, palmeraies, kasbahs, agadirs and rock carvings. Near the coast, detour north to Tiznit’s jewellery souq, particularly if it’s a Thursday (market day).

Arcing west and south, you come to Mirleft, with its pink-and-blue arches, and Sidi Ifni, a jumble of wind-whipped art-deco relics surrounded by coastal walks. Try to pass through Goulimime on a Saturday morning, when the camel market takes place, and stay at Fort Bou-Jerif, near a ruined French Foreign Legion fort. End your journey on the edge of the Western Sahara in sandy, gloriously isolated Tarfaya.
Morocco’s Atlantic seaboard takes you from the clamour of the north to the deserted coastline of the south.

Take the ferry from Spain to Tangier, at once a quintessentially Moroccan mosaic and a decadent outpost of Europe. Catch the train south, first to artsy Assilah, which is loaded with whitewashed charms, and then to Rabat, with its colonial architecture and palm-lined boulevards. Follow Casa’s suburbanites to the sleepy ‘Cité Portugaise’, El-Jadida, then take the spectacular ocean road to Oualidia, the St Tropez lookalike with a perfect crescent lagoon.

Further south, the hippies once gravitated to Essaouira, and its white-walled ramparts, bohemian beat and renovated riads still make travellers linger. When you’ve eaten your fill at the outdoor fish grills, follow Jimi Hendrix and today’s surfers to the peaceful beaches at Diabat and Sidi Kaouki.

Past more surf spots, Agadir is a family-friendly seaside resort, but Mirleft’s beaches and boutique accommodation are more appealing, as is art-deco Sidi Ifni. If you’re overlanding south to Mauritania, break your journey at Tarfaya, like the early-20th-century French airmail pilots, and breezy Dakhla.
OUR STORY
A beat-up old car, a few dollars in the pocket and a sense of adventure. In 1972 that’s all Tony and Maureen Wheeler needed for the trip of a lifetime – across Europe and Asia overland to Australia. It took several months, and at the end – broke but inspired – they sat at their kitchen table writing and stapling together their first travel guide, Across Asia on the Cheap. Within a week they’d sold 1500 copies. Lonely Planet was born. Today, Lonely Planet has offices in Melbourne, London and Oakland, with more than 600 staff and writers. We share Tony’s belief that ‘a great guidebook should do three things: inform, educate and amuse’.

OUR WRITERS

James Bainbridge
Coordination author: Southern Morocco & Western Sahara

James’ travel-writing career began a decade ago with a trip to Morocco. Taking a break from magazine journalism in London, he passed through the country on an overland mission to Timbuktu (and back). Since the resultant article for the Guardian, James has written about Africa and the Middle East for worldwide publications, including Lonely Planet guides from Turkey to West Africa. Morocco has drawn him back several times since that initial foray, and he continues to sing its praises with the passion of a Gnawa musician. When he’s not researching Anti Atlas grand-taxi fares, James lives in Cape Town.

Alison Bing
Marrakesh & Central Morocco

When she’s not methodically sampling every mechoui lamb roast in Marrakesh, diligently inspecting riad rooftop sunsets or personally testing hammam steam levels, Alison co-authors Lonely Planet’s California, USA and Italy guides. Alison has a background in Islamic art, architecture and North African political economy from the American University in Cairo, and holds a masters degree from the Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy, a program of Tufts and Harvard Universities – respectable diplomatic credentials she regularly under-mines with opinionated art, food and culture commentary for newspapers, magazines and radio.

Paul Clammer
Imperial Cities, Middle Atlas & the East

As a student, Paul had his first solo backpacking experience when he took a bus from his Cambridgeshire home to Casablanca. After an interlude where he trained and worked as a molecular biologist, he returned to work as a tour guide, trekking in the Atlas and trying not to lose passengers in the Fez medina. The increasing number of budget airline routes from the UK to Morocco is one of his favourite recent travel innovations and he hops over to Morocco on a regular basis.

Helen Ranger
Atlantic Coast; Mediterranean Coast & the Rif

Helen moved to Fez in 2004 and has been writing about Morocco ever since. Contributing to Lonely Planet’s Fes Encounter and ‘The View from Fez’ blog, she is fascinated by Morocco’s diversity. Helen checked out chic city boulevards, untangled Tangier’s medina, scrambled down a Beni Snassen mountainside, kicked back in Chefchaouen and enjoyed the curiosities (and tapas bars) of Ceuta and Melilla. She lives in a 400-year-old traditional house where she’ll remain until she never gets lost in the Fez medina.

Read more about Paul at: lonelyplanet.com/members/paulclammer

Read more about Helen at: lonelyplanet.com/members/helenranger

Published by Lonely Planet Publications Pty Ltd
ABN 36 005 607 983
10th edition – Aug 2011
ISBN 978 1 74179 598 1
© Lonely Planet 2011 Photographs © as indicated 2011
10 9 8 7 6 5 4 3 2
Printed in China

Although the authors and Lonely Planet have taken all reasonable care in preparing this book, we make no warranty about the accuracy or completeness of its content and, to the maximum extent permitted, disclaim all liability arising from its use.