Barossa Valley & Southeastern South Australia

Why Go?

From legendary wine regions north of Adelaide, around the undulating bends of the Murray River, and down along the Limestone Coast, this vast swathe of South Australia demands your undivided attention.

You can tackle the Barossa and Clare Valleys as day trips from Adelaide but why not sip a few excellent local wines and sleep in? Cycling trails weave between the vines and fabulous restaurants complement the liquid offerings. These compact SA valleys and their historic towns are custom-built holiday haunts.

Conversely, the Murray River is enormous, curling across the entire state. Towns here are utilitarian with country sensibility at the helm. Silently sliding by, the big river is undeniable in its beauty and grace.

Tracking southeast from Adelaide to Mount Gambier, SA’s second-biggest city, you’ll pass the dunescapes and lagoons of Coorong National Park, super-charming beach towns and the cab-sauv vines of the Coonawarra wine region.
